

My Dad

Towering above me, over six feet tall
But still he never made me feel small
At football and hurling I'd rarely excel
But he was the first one to get there whenever I fell!
Armed with a sweetie, if I felt bad
And a massive big hug, that was my dad!

We'd practice our shooting for hours and hours
Running for cover during the showers.
And when I'd put over that winning score
Even on the pitch I could hear his roar
His beaming smile at what I'd done
He'd proudly declare, "That's my Son"

As for my schooling he didn't really bother
He didn't think much of being a scholar!
"In my day you did an honest day's graft,
All that reading and writing's just plain daft!"
All the same he was proud at my graduation,
"Didn't I tell ye ye needed an education!"

As I grew up I learned more and more
About how being a parent could be quite a chore.
But he never seemed to treat it that way.
He made the most of every single day.
To him he was born to be my dad.
He said it was the best job he'd ever had.

I'll never forget the day I heard
He'd passed away without a word.
Loving parents are a gift from above
And it's hard sometimes being without that love.
But I try not to be too downcast or sad
Because I was lucky to have had a great dad!
